PREMIER FIGHTS SECOND DUEL

First Conflict Lasted Thirty-two Rounds—This Only One Round. Vienna.—Recently the Hungarian premier fought a duel with another, with swords, with Count Aladar Szczepeny, a member of the Opposition in the Hungarian Parliament.

A week ago, it will be recalled, the premier fought a sword duel of thirty-two rounds with Count Michael Karolyi, another member of the Opposition, in the Hungarian Parliament. That affair arose out of a quarrel at the Nobles Club, following Count Tisza's successful effort to break down

COUNT STEPHEN TISZA

SORE FROM ELBOWS TO FINGERS

ZAM-BU WORKED A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Reverend Gentleman Fully Convalescent

Mrs. Edna V. Doolittle of Caledonia, Queen Co., N.S., says: "I must add my testimony to the value of Zam-Bu. Ulcers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal it by various means, nothing would do, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration."

I then consulted a physician, who faithfully carried out their instructions. I drank pint after pint of blood medicines, tried salve after salve and lotion after lotion; but it was of no avail.

"My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and had a postcard sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing for me. I was given to understand that I must give up the arm completely."

"One day a friend came to me, and I had tried Zam-Bu. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did not go far, though, the man who had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to my long story short, Zam-Bu cured all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case, and that it is Zam-Bu alone which cured me."

The Rev. W. B. M. Park of Caledonia, Miss Doolittle's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimony of Miss Doolittle concerning the value of Zam-Bu is correct as far as we know her to go."

I have known her for a year and a half and her cure effected by Zam-Bu is remarkable.

The Rev. W. B. M. Park of Caledonia, Miss Doolittle's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimony of Miss Doolittle concerning the value of Zam-Bu is correct as far as we know her to go."

We never hear of any ulceration, blood poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, burns, bruises, or any skin injury in our practice, though Zam-Bu is not applied. It also makes a curative for all. Drugists and stores sell at 5c. per box, or post free from Zam-Bu, Toronto, for price. Receive cheap and harmful imitations and substitute.

Count Tisza challenged Count Szeps to the duel, the combatants to fight to disability. At the first attack Count Szczepeny received a fierce blow on his head, upon which the doctors and seconds declared the duel finished.

The premier is likely to fight a third duel, having been challenged by Count Desider Polony, another member of the Opposition.

Dress Stupidity

Is that what right? asked the visitor who had already outstayed his welcome. His hostess yawned. Oh, no, she said. That's the clock we are on.

The obdurate one sat down again. What the visitor? he remarked. What a curious name to give a clock.

She, too, was wondering what the visitor said. She could not understand it. We call it that because we can never make it go.

And even then he failed to see the point.

Slight Misunderstanding

A man who lisped had bought some pigs, and he and his neighbor for the use of a pigsty for a few days.

I have just been purchasing them—two two-thousand and a half.

I want to put them in your pen till I can get a place for them.

Two thousand pigs! exclaimed the astonished neighbor. Why, my pen will hardly hold a dozen.

You don't understand me, Mither Bent. I don't have two thousand pigs, but two thousand and a half.

I hear said Mr. Bent. Two thousand pigs? Why must be crazy. And the lisper gave it up.

DOG BETRAYED HIDING PLACE

Farmhand Packed in Case is Sent on Train to Freight Station

Farmer, George Koenigheuer, a farmhand employed at Koenigheuer, has had a remarkable experience while traveling and perishable goods on the Prussian state railways, in consequence of which he is now under arrest.

Koenigheuer desired to return his old dog, a pug living in the village of Griesheim, in the state of Hesse, without money, he conceived the idea of having himself nailed up in a packing case, and shipped by goods train to Berlin, where he was arrested, and took up his residence, with enough sausage, beer and bread to last for a week.

All went well during the first day and night of the journey, but on the morning of the second day the packing case had to be removed to another train at a station, and was temporarily deposited on a station platform.

The stationmaster, a dog, scented the case and barked furiously. A puzzled station employee, finally broke open the packing case, found Koenigheuer, who thought he had arrived at Griesheim, and handed him to the police.

She—Pardon me, sir, for walking on your feet.

He—Oh, don't mention it, I walk on them myself you know.

BOOK FOR GUEST LIST.

Three Ways in Which the Ceremony May Be Impressively Performed Without Giving Offense to One's Relatives or Friends—The Importance of Tagging Guests.

Dear Elsa—I was so astonished and pleased to hear about Dorothy's engagement. Verily, verily, a woman is a bundle of contradictions, and as one of the characters in a popular comic opera says about the sex: "You never find two alike any one time; you never find one alike twice." Now, here's Dorothy, a bachelor girl (I won't say old maid), who positively glories in and flaunted her independence in the face of every eligible male, actually having the nerve to go and annex one of the undesirables. She's a spindly girl, and she makes the man she's chosen a charming, chummy sort of wife. My love to her and all best wishes for her happiness.

This matrimonial talk has received just now one told me recently about the very systematic way in which a sister of hers was preparing for her wedding.

She has an indexed blank book for a list of wedding guests, in which she puts down names and addresses of the people she wants to invite to the ceremony. Schoolmates whose addresses have been forgotten she writes to her college to supply. In a separate list are the names of people who are to be merely invited to the reception. This early list is not confined to the immediate relatives, but includes the distant girl she invited to come along to have a like account, for if one must cut in number, she argues, "it is impolite to do all the cutting on the man's list. Better to run chances of making space when the old friends come, than to give offense to the bridegroom."

I think that invitation decisions are always difficult and dangerous at wedding times. It is considered, rather unjustly, that a wedding stands for continued friendship in the new life, so the invited are doubly invited, and the bridegroom is asked. The overworked bride has need of all the tact, policy and kindness she can command not to make enemies.

This girl I am telling you about has hit on three ways of compromising on wedding invitations and still keep peace.

First invite only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom and send no invitation cards to friends and acquaintances. This is especially a large one it may be necessary to limit invitations to the wedding to first cousins.

The second way is to have a church wedding with relatives and bridal party only at the reception.

The third is to have a private ceremony with only close friends and as large a reception as the house will hold. This last method the wise one has adopted.

If there is to be a reception only for the relatives and friends, the party should be sent to the same friends and fast friends under the impression that they will not come. They may, besides, it is bad taste and is sure to be found out.

I have become so absorbed in my subject that I am taking up the wedding invitation question again, this time for Dorothy's enlightenment, and very likely she knows the form better than I, but I shall recklessly plumb, ahead.

A wedding reception invitation demands a reply, as people are expected to come. It is better to refer to R. S. V. P. on the card. In ordering the wedding breakfast allow for two-thirds of those invited unless most of the invited have gone out of town, when a one-half limit may be safe.

The only safe way to solve the wedding present situation is by a system of double checking so no gift can go unacknowledged. Open each gift singly and mark gift, sender and address of store on a sheet of paper before the next package is opened.

During the winter months—of Christmas and the wonderful outdoor tree put up for the great public's benefit—there is a need for the electric light, a general one, for lighting the tree, but unless you have seen the effect of the large green tree, ablaze with lights against a cold, starlit sky and the snowdrifts forming a setting at the base of the tree, no idea of the beauty of the picture could be gathered. A card or two, with a few words, familiar and always impressive Christmas cards, and in the evening an orchestra played at intervals to amuse the vast crowds of people who thronged the big open space.

It is to be hoped that every city and town will take up this beautiful idea of a municipal outdoor Christmas tree.

I must before I stop talking tell you Dick's intent. Some one asked him to define his idea of tact. "Well," he drawled, "if I should go to heaven and should meet St. Peter I would not talk about my family." Lovely, isn't it? Ever yours, MABEL.

A LEGAL CURIOSITY.

Potin's Title Deed That Bled the Test of the Courts.

A deed for the conveyance of a piece of land that is one of the greatest legal curiosities in the world was read up in the U. S. Supreme Court by a lawyer at Boardstown, Ill. A branch of the I. O. O. F. was organized at Magrath on Wednesday night of this week, by Grand Master Fairley, of Calgary, assisted by Grand Secretary Tisdale, Grand Treasurer Adams, and our old friend J. A. Tully. The degree team from Raymond did the fancy work.

Marshall is a Winner

The fifteen-round bout to take place last Saturday night lasted only five rounds, when the hand of Dick Marshall ascended as the victor. Foley desiring that the bout conclude as he was suffering from an old break in one of his ribs.

In the first round Dick secured a heavy uppercut at Foley causing his nose and mouth to bleed considerably.

All through the entire bout Marshall proved his superiority over his opponent, in spite of the fact that Foley was considerably heavier. Foley was not at all in good trim and needed considerable recovery of fat, but Marshall never appeared better.

A good preliminary was put on by Danny Dunlop and Gordon Gleave. This bout lasted six rounds and resulted in favor of the former.

The attendance was large. W. Tuttle, of Macleod, acted as referee while Messrs. Addison and Bower were judges.

Arrangements are being made for a match between Dick Marshall and either Eugenio Rogers, which will take place at Lethbridge about the 15th of April.

Misses A. M. Gibson and M. R. Cooper presented a very pleasing programme at the local opera house on Friday night last. The programme was of English and Scotch characters, and included impersonations, readings, character songs, classics, relief and entertaining comedy and pathos.

The work of Miss Gibson as an impersonator and character artist brought forth considerable praise, while Miss Cooper left nothing to be desired in the way of music.

The basket social given in the Mission hall last night proved a success even beyond all expectations. A musical programme preceded the sale of baskets. The programme was well rendered.
